

HIS HEART BEATS FOR DYING KOREA

Minister Min's Mission a Complete Fizzle.

HIS NERVE FAILED HIM

Broken-Hearted Over the Tragic Death of His Brother, the Diplomat Loses Hope.

That the special mission to America of Young Tehan Min, Korean minister to France, was a total failure, was due to a great extent to the blow that befell him through the suicide of his brother, Prince Min. Although the Korean government is not officially recognized directly by the State Department he no doubt would have fallen short of his purpose in coming to Washington, but it is understood that he almost completely lost heart and nerve after arriving in New York, when he was first apprised of the death of his brother, to whom he was greatly devoted.

In his grief, the minister lost his nerve. According to the statement made today by the only person who was in the confidence of the minister during his brief stay in America, he was rendered almost a total wreck by the tragic end of his brother's life, and what he had planned to be strong arguments either slipped his memory or the courage to express them failed him when he called at the State Department.

It was stated that although his call was not accepted as official, he was given a kindly and sympathetic hearing. Now it develops, according to The Times informant, that the audience was brief, and that the minister was frankly told at the outset that the case was beyond any action on the part of this Government.

Credentials Insufficient.

Another important factor in the failure of the mission was the fact that the minister came without any credentials—that such credentials as he had were not recognized by the department as stamping him as a special envoy from the Emperor of Korea. That he was the Korean minister to Paris was shown without doubt, but the only thing he had to indicate that he came at the personal instance of the Emperor was a telegram from Shanghai. This cablegram, addressed to the minister in Paris, instructed him to proceed at once to America and lay the case of his country before the President.

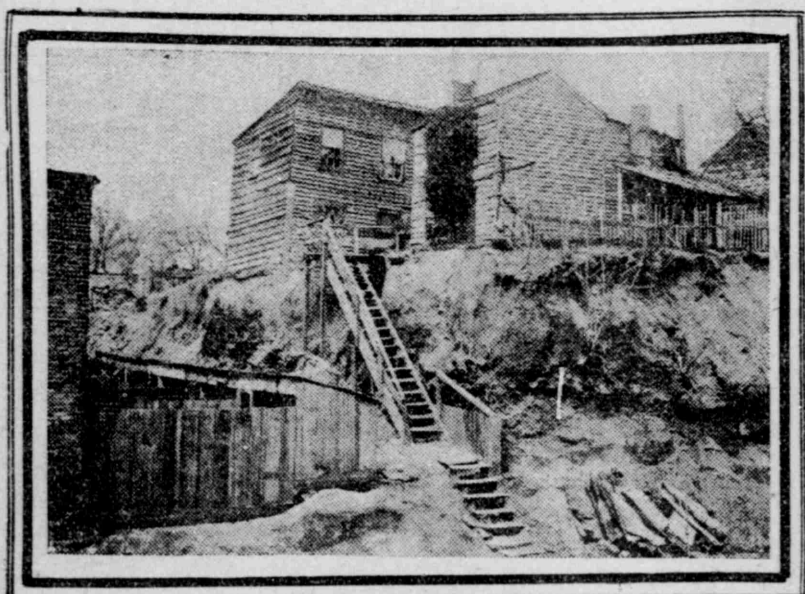

The message was even not signed, but Mr. Min declared it to be instructions from his sovereign. He said it undoubtedly was necessary that the bearer be spirited out of the country to evade the Japanese, and it was sent from Shanghai to prevent it becoming known in Korea. He said it came in the royal code, but this he could not display to the State Department, and even if he could, it would mean nothing to the American officials.

When he started from Paris, after receiving the message, Mr. Min was hopeful. Depressed over the conditions in his country, he was inspired to pour forth his eloquence to picture the conditions that have been brought about in his native land as a result of the Japanese protectorate. But when he learned of his brother's death, he was at once grief-stricken. Hastening to this city, he secluded himself in his hotel, denying himself to all callers for nearly a week.

His Weak Effort.

Finally, he recovered sufficiently to venture out and he undertook to discuss the case with the American Government. He remarked that he had lost both his nerve and heart, and it was owing to the fact that he came so far on the mission, which had attracted attention throughout the world, that he went through the form of presenting a

ONE OF WASHINGTON'S HOVELS.

The Associated Charities Have Done Much to Aid the Community of Such Places.

THOUSANDS IN NEED GIVEN ASSISTANCE

Good Work Done by Associated Charities Shown in Recent Report Compiled by the Secretary, Charles F. Weller.

In the comparison which Charles F. Weller, secretary of the Associated Charities, draws between the work of that organization in 1930 and 1935, the figures and statistics have a significance far beyond what they show upon the surface.

During these five years the scope of the work has increased many fold, Mr. Weller says:

"In a vague way the comparison of the two totals may suggest how the work has grown. The 100,875 units of 1935 as compared with the 42,498.45 of 1930 may roughly suggest that the work has more than doubled."

"Each year the effort has been for less relief and more upbuilding. This is the ideal kind of aid, and each year the Associated Charities approaches nearer this goal. Necessarily the growth of the work in the past five years has resulted in increased expenses. In 1930 the year's budget was $6,406; in 1935 it was $14,372. This refers only to the general fund of the association, irrespective of the various sub-committees and other charitable institutions."

"Only six new paid workers have been added to the force in this period. The salaries of only three of the offices have been increased, but in this employment of more and better personal service, and in the provision of such offices, telephones, car fares, postage and printed matter as will make the personal service effective the increased expenditures have occurred."

"During the year more than 3,000 families were given aid. This number included nearly 10,000 individuals, or about one in every thirty of the total population of the District."

"The work has been increased by the increase in the number of volunteers. Five years ago the number was 'several.' Today there are 225. Last year over 64,000 visits were made by regular agents and volunteers."

protest. His protest was only a faint statement of facts; his appeal was stated only in a few words. He saw the Secretary of State and that was sufficient; his brother's death had made his mission a failure, acknowledged by himself. He had intended to see the President, even if it were necessary to demand an audience, but instead, he did not even venture near the White House.

Once outside the offices of the State Department, his first desires were to leave America and go to his home in Korea, to his friends in France, and later, when necessary, to his old home in Korea, and the new conditions that will confront him there.

Such is the story of the mission of, perhaps, the ablest statesman in Korea, who, before his country fell under foreign control and his brother ended his life, would have ranked well with the great statesmen and diplomats of the world.

CAPE TOWN, Dec. 15.—Four hundred acres of prehistoric fossil remains have been discovered near Danger Point, about 100 miles from Cape Town.

HIS SIOUX CIVILIZED IN ONE GENERATION

Rev. Mr. Eastman, Himself Full-Blooded, Tells of His People Living in Houses, Tilling Soil, Paying Taxes, and Working in Politics.

There are different sorts of race problems in this great country, and different attitudes toward them in different parts of the country.

John Eastman, pastor of a Presbyterian church composed exclusively of Sioux Indians who vote, own fine farms and are accepted as citizens in every sense—tells of how the Dakotas handle their race problem. Mr. Eastman, who is here in the interest of a large claim which his tribe is pressing against the Government, told an interested group of the development of his people in the Northwest from hostile savages into self-respecting citizens, in a single generation. It is a wonderful story.

"No, we have no race problem," he said. "Perhaps that fact is largely responsible for the progress our people have made."

"A majority of the Sioux of the different bands have accepted lands in allotment. West of the Missouri river the custom has been to give each head of a family 640 acres of land; each single adult, 320 acres; and each minor, 160. In the better farming country east of the Missouri, these acreages have been cut in half."

Live in Houses.

"Our people live in houses like those of white people; they farm much as the whites do, though I must admit that we are not as good farmers yet. The Indian could hardly be expected to forget his instincts all at once. He doesn't take well to tilling the soil, but does better at raising livestock. Sometimes he will farm industriously and successfully for several seasons and then get tired and quit for a while."

All these conditions are bad, of course. "Yet, on the other hand, he is making great progress on the whole. We pay taxes just as our white neighbors do. We go to the caucuses and conventions and affiliate with the political parties of our preference. Paying school taxes, we send our children to the public schools, and they are just as bright and capable as the white children."

"Nobody ever thinks of raising the race line in schools or in politics. The white people accept us, apparently, as entitled to the benefits we pay for. We vote, and we don't let our votes any oftener than white people do theirs, while we don't buy votes so often as the white men do; so I guess we average up with them on the point of civic virtue."

Handsome Red Man.

The Rev. Mr. Eastman is as handsome a specimen of his race as is often seen. He is full six feet tall, straight as an arrow, broad shouldered and deep chested. Though he is fifty-six years old, his hair is black as a raven's wing, with never a touch of gray. He is a brother of the famous Dr. Charles A. Eastman, who married a white lady of culture and fine family, and is now at Amherst, Mass., in the Government employ, working on a comprehensive scheme of revising the allotments and modernizing the names of the Sioux.

WOULD REDUCE NUMBER OF SALOONS

The criminal record of this municipality would be considerably decreased if saloons were wholly eliminated from the residence streets, is the statement made by a committee representing the Civic Club, which appeared before the Excise Board today to protest against the number of saloons.

Aged in wood for 7 years

The proper ripening or aging of whiskey depends on the care and method of storage. Our warehouses are of the most modern and improved style, constructed entirely of brick and steel and equipped with the hot air system of heating and ventilating, which keeps the whiskey at a uniform temperature the year around. As a result our seven-year-old is as fully matured as fourteen-year-old aged in the ordinary way, and it's better, too, for an uneven temperature of extreme heat and cold destroys the quality.

During the entire process of distillation, from the time it is stored in barrels in our warehouses until, seven years later, it is bottled and shipped, from the very grain we buy to the whiskey you get, HAYNER WHISKEY is under the watchful care of ten government officials who have entire charge of our plant. It goes direct from our distillery to you with all its original strength, richness and flavor, carries a UNITED STATES REGISTERED DISTILLER'S GUARANTEE OF PURITY and AGE and saves the dealer's enormous profits. Is it any wonder, then, that we have over a quarter of a million satisfied customers? You'll be one, too, if you will only try it. Your money back if you're not satisfied. If you don't want four quarts yourself, get a friend to join you.
